Introduction

Welcome to the e-resource guide Coping at Home for Families! This guide was compiled by Recreation Therapists within the Child and Adolescent Addiction, Mental Health and Psychiatry Program (CAAMHPP) in the Calgary Zone, who recognized that one of the many challenges facing families due to COVID-19 is finding new ways to have fun and reduce boredom while they stay home.

Recreation Therapists know that recreation and leisure are essential parts of well-being and quality of life of Albertans. Play and leisure allow all of us, regardless of our age, to explore our strengths and skills and experience better well-being during times of stress and uncertainty.

Families will find an abundance of ideas to support meaningful engagement in activities to support their wellness while staying close to home. This guide provides general information about health and wellness with the intention of inspiring families to take care of their social, emotional, physical, intellectual and spiritual selves.

In the words of a great tennis player:

“Start where you are.

Use what you have.

Do what you can.”

- Arthur Ashe

What is Health & Wellness?

In Old English, the word health means whole and the word wellness means wealth—together these words tell us that we are our best when we are whole (Alberta Health, 2014). We, as people, are at our best when all dimensions of our wellness are healthy (Alberta Health, 2014). It is what allows us all to work, play, create, and love. By doing all of the things your family already does, through creativity, connecting virtually, learning new skills, getting outside, and laughing together, you are maintaining your families' health and wellness.

This guide is sectioned into 5 dimensions of wellness:

Social Wellness: positive relationships with family, friends, and community members

Physical Wellness: taking care of your body by making informed decisions

Emotional Wellness: positive feelings about yourself, sharing your feelings and being optimistic

Intellectual Wellness: engaging in stimulating activities, expanding knowledge and abilities

Spiritual Wellness: living a meaningful and purposeful life

By trying or engaging in meaningful activities in each of these areas, you are practicing balancing your areas of wellness. Now it's time to check out each some new activities to try!

Social Wellness

Social wellness is the quality of the relationships you have with the people around you such as your family, friends, co-workers, classmates or neighbours (Healthwise, 2018b). The support you and your family get from your social connections can add to meaning and purpose in life (Healthwise, 2018b). While we can't visit our supports in person right now, there are lots of ways to connect with our supports that don't reside at home with us.

Check out these social activity ideas:

1. Connect with friends and family with a video chat app.
2. Try out your singing voice with a karaoke night.
3. Host a movie night in your living room.
4. Try a new board game or card game together.

1. Connect with friends and family with a video chat app.

Sometimes a phone call just isn't enough. See your loved ones faces virtually through one of the apps below.

Zoom : Has features including face to face chats, screen sharing. Use on tablets, phones and computers. Recommended age: 18+.	Free Basic Account, Paid Options.

2. Try out your singing voice with a karaoke night.

Have each family member make a list of their favourite songs and then get ready to sing your hearts out! Find your favourite songs on YouTube, or try out the Smule or the Voice apps.

3. Host a movie night in your living room.

Get out your comfy blankets, pop some popcorn and grab your favourite treat and have a movie night together. There are currently many streaming services offering 1 month free such as YouTube Premium, Netflix, and Crave.

4. Try a new board game or card game together.

Blow the dust off those games in your closet or try out some of these resources. Want to play with family over video chat? Try Yahtzee or other dice games.

Physical Wellness

Physical activity and exercise can help you feel better, have more energy, improve your sleep, keep your mind sharp and even improve your ability to handle stress (Healthwise, 2018a). If you or your family haven't been active recently, start slow and increase your activity each day. Any movement and activity you do is better than nothing. For recommended physical activity guidelines, check out the Canadian Society for Exercise Physiology.

Check out these physical activity ideas:

1. Get your stretch on!
2. Create an indoor or outdoor obstacle course.
3. Get move in, move in!
4. Use the outdoor spaces nearby to stay active..

1. Get your stretch on!

Take a break from the couch and try out some yoga stretching exercises. Yoga is great for our muscles, spine and even our mood.

Emotional Wellness

Emotional wellness is our positive feelings about ourselves, our ability to express our feelings and our sense of optimism (Alberta Health, 2014). When we are stressed, it is important to have ways to express our thoughts and feelings. Practicing engaging in your favourite activities can help you relax, find relief and cope in a healthy way (Healthwise, 2018c). More information on managing stress can be found here.

Some activity ideas to support emotional wellness:

1. Colouring/Drawing
2. Positive News
3. Journaling, poetry or writing
4. Time in nature
5. Uplifting music/videos.
6. Random acts of kindness.

1. Spend some time colouring or drawing.

Colouring and drawing are great outlets for our thoughts and feelings. If you don't have any colouring books, provided below are some printable and digital options

Yes Magazine reports on positive ways communities are responding to social problems.	Free

3. Try journaling, poetry or creative writing

Journaling and writing can be a great activity to help us express our thoughts and emotions. If you are creative, try an art journal or a photo journal. It's as easy as grabbing a pencil, some paper and finding a topic. For younger children, try out this positivity journal or the COVID-19 Time Capsule.

4. Spend some time in nature.

Try a nature scavenger hunt, geocache Start your seeds, or try an indoor herb garden! There are lots of options to interact with nature, even indoors!

5. Take a break by listening to or watching uplifting music/videos.

We can be hard on ourselves to keep busy and productive but it is okay to take a break and chill out! Put on your favourite playlist and listen to some music or put on an episode of your favourite comedic video or show to lighten the mood.

Resource Description	Cost
America's Funniest Home Videos is the longest running funny video television program. Their channel has tons of entertaining videos.	Free
James Corden Carpool Karaoke : tune in to watch your favourite artists sing with James Corden.	Free
SoulPancake spreads joy through their videos like Kid President.	Free
The Tonight Show: Home Edition : watch Jimmy Fallon's at home show while he works from home.	Free

6. Complete a random act of kindness.

Being kind to others helps us all feel better. Try making some cards and mailing them to your friends and family. Bake a sweet treat for someone and leave it at their doorstep. Write a letter to someone from More Love Letters. Brighten someone's day with kindness rocks.

Intellectual Wellness

Engaging in activities that help our brain learn new skills, practice problem solving, and requires attention and focus, helps us to boost our intellectual wellness. By engaging in interesting activities that allow you to grow your knowledge, you may feel more accomplished and productive.

Here are some intellectual activities:

1. Learn about writing music or playing an instrument.
2. Study a new language.
3. Visit a museum, zoo and more virtually.
4. Try your hand at a new arts skill.
5. Read or listen to a new book or podcast.

1. Learn about writing music or playing an instrument.

Spiritual Wellness

Spirituality is about connecting with what's meaningful to you in a way that lightens or enriches your spirit (Healthwise, 2019b). Spiritual wellness can bring comfort and healing when handling times of stress (Healthwise, 2019b). For some people, taking time in nature, to mediate, to pray or to sit in quiet may be spiritual. For others, practicing kindness, gratitude or faith in a higher being. What brings each person spiritual wellness is unique and individual.

Here are some spiritual activities to try:

1. Connect with yourself through mindful activities and apps.
2. Try taking a walk in a labyrinth.
3. Connect with your place of worship virtually.
4. Complete any activity that feels meaningful and purposeful to you.

1. Connect with yourself through mindful activities and apps.

Mindfulness means to focus on the present moment by purposefully paying attention to your surroundings, emotions, thoughts and how your body feels (Healthwise, 2019a).

Mindfulness can help you quiet your mind, relax your body and cope with stress (Healthwise, 2019a).

Make your own finger labyrinth with playdough .	Free

3. Connect with your place of worship virtually.

Many places of worship are offering virtual services and meetings. Connect with your place of worship to see if they have opportunities for you to connect with your community.

4. Complete any activity that feels meaningful and purposeful to you.

Spirituality is different for every person and every family. What kinds of activities help you feel connected to humanity or feel purposeful? For some, dancing, visiting with an Elder, praying or attending a religious service may be their answer. For others, spending time outside or journaling. The options are endless!
